SUCCESSES AND CHALLENGES

Strengths of the school feeding program in Bangladesh include the government ownership of, and contribution to, the program; the level of inter-ministerial coordination and engagement; and the level of community participation.

Positive developments include the endorsement of the draft nutrition-sensitive National School Meal Policy and the Ministry of Health & Family Welfare’s recommendation of the minimum nutritional requirements for school meals.

In addition, the school feeding program has been expanded to 104 sub-districts.

School feeding in Bangladesh is mostly based on the fortified biscuits modality, though school meals would be preferable. The Directorate of Primary Education intends to introduce school meals in 16 sub-districts soon.

STUDIES CONDUCTED

Studies carried out by IFPRI (2003), Tufts University (2004), Impact Study (2009, 2011, & 2017), IMED report (2014), Outcome Study (2015), and baseline and endline evaluation

NOTES:
The high-energy biscuits served in the school feeding program are purchased in processed form. These are centrally procured by the Directorate of Primary Education from enlisted biscuit manufacturers and delivered to primary schools by various NGOs. To reduce packaging waste, biscuit cartons are commonly sold and re-used at the local level. Other food items served in school meals are purchased from farmers, and all purchased food items are procured through a competitive tendering process.
