SUCCESSES AND CHALLENGES

Recent successes of the National School Feeding Program include the establishment of the National School Feeding Unit at the Ministry of Education in June 2018, the structured professional activities that are available for school feeding personnel, the development of criteria for the school meal menu, and the periodic monitoring and evaluation of food service providers with respect to what meals are served, where meals are prepared, and from where food is procured. There are no concerns related to corruption/mismanagement in the National School Feeding Program. Of note, there is strict adherence to established internal accounting protocols and periodic audits by an internal auditor, as well as the annual external audit by a private firm to mitigate such concerns at the Ministry of Education.

Recent challenges experienced by the National School Feeding Program include having an insufficient budget to implement new school feeding initiatives or even to address gaps in the remuneration of staff in the newly established National School Feeding Unit at the Ministry of Education. The program has also experienced staffing shortages, particularly with respect to School Feeding Officer(s), Assessors for site and home evaluations, and clerical personnel.

STUDIES CONDUCTED

In October 2017, the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations conducted a study on what had been the National Lunch Program and the National Vendors Program. The findings paved the way for the merger of these two programs into one National School Feeding Program (NSFP).

RESEARCH NEEDED

Research to examine the impact of the National School Feeding Program on the recipients’ physical, social, psychological, and educational well-being.
NATIONAL SCHOOL FEEDING PROGRAM (NSFP)

Lead implementer(s): Ministry of Education

OBJECTIVES:
- To meet educational goals
- To provide a social safety net
- To meet nutritional and/or health goals

MODALITIES OF PROVIDING STUDENTS WITH FOOD:
- In-school meals and snacks

TARGETING:
Households that qualify for cash-transfer assistance from the Department of Social Services and have school-aged dependents in the public school system are automatically referred to the Ministry of Education to be added to the National School Feeding Program.
